Amazonas baby slings are the most flexible and most natural way to carry a baby. From the beginning, up to 3 years it helps you getting through everyday life. The weight lies comfortably on your back, shoulders and your hands are free.

Small babies enjoy close body contact with their parents. They can hear the familiar sound of heartbeat. They smell the warmth of your skin and know that they are not left alone, which allows them develop trust in the world within the first couple of weeks in their life.

Toddlers like to be active and take part in situations on the same level as their parents. Being face to face with adults makes them more interested in things around them, than when they are put aside in a pram. Toddlers who actively take part in everyday situations become more intelligent and develop a sense of self control which lets them grow into clever, independent-minded kids and adults.

- Finally it is just nice to be around without being handicapped by a big trolley or push chair, get over stairs without hazzle and in or out of trains without asking for help.
- You and your baby can go wherever you want and feel free and stylish in a trendy baby sling instead of a boring old pram.

We test our products for the skin of the very littles ones. On request we'll gladly send you the test reports (in German).

FAQ

Is it complicated to wrap a Amazonas baby sling?

No, wearing a baby sling is as easy as changing nappies or carrying your baby in any other baby carrier. Learning how to use a BabyWrap only takes a few minutes. You need to know only four simple steps to put on a BabyWrap.

From which age on can I carry my baby in a BabyWrap?

You can carry your baby in a baby sling from birth on. The Baby sling has no pre-made form, so it can't be too big for the baby. It always fits close to the body, supports the baby's spine and holds the head.

Which wrapping style should I use at the beginning?

For small babies up to 6 months we recommend the wrapping styles "Resting" and "Upright". The resting position only suits for babies up to about 8 weeks, most babies prefer the upright position from the beginning on. If you and your baby like it, you can skip the resting position and start straight with "Upright".

Which Wrapping Styles do I use with older children?

With older children you use the wrapping styles "Sitting" or "Back". Both styles can be worn when the baby is about 6 month old and once it can sit free without support. In both these positions, the baby's weight is put on your hips and shoulders, so it is comfortable to carry heavier children.

I have problems with my back, can I still carry my baby in a baby sling?

It is healthier to carry your baby in a baby sling than to carry it without any support. This means, when you carry your baby at all, you can carry it as well in a baby sling. The baby sling puts the baby's weight on your hip and across your back, instead of having it just on your shoulders. It gives good support, so you can hold your baby in an ergonomically correct position. The baby feels lighter in a baby sling than it feels when you just hold it on your arm, especially when it is asleep.

How long must a baby sling be?

The length of the BabyWrap depends on your body size and the carrying styles you want to use. The size of the child does not matter.

For the traditional wrapping styles you need one of the following slings:

- 4,7m - normal size (for a body size up to 170cm, european clothing size 36 to 40, women)
- 5,2m - oversize (for a body size above 170cm, european clothing size 38 to 46, woman and up to size 54, men)

Does the BabyWrap shrink when washed?

Yes, Amazonas baby slings are 10% longer when they are sold than after the first wash. We don't shrink them artificially before selling them to avoid unnecessary water pollution through detergents. The 4,50m or 5,10m are the guaranteed length after the first wash. Please note, that both lengths are meters!

Can the fabric get ripped while using?

No, if it is not treated with sharp objects, the fabric does not rip through normal use.
